

Understanding Annuities

This publication:

Explains the different types of annuity contracts

Describes the various contractual features

Discusses how to shop for an annuity

State of Wisconsin
Office of the Commissioner of Insurance
P.O. Box 7873
Madison, WI 53707-7873
oci.wi.gov

The mission of the Office of the Commissioner of Insurance . . .
Leading the way in informing and protecting the public and responding to their insurance needs.

If you have a specific complaint about your insurance, refer it first to the insurance company or agent involved. If you do not receive satisfactory answers, contact the Office of the Commissioner of Insurance (OCI).

To file a complaint online or to print a complaint form:

OCI's Web Site

oci.wi.gov

Phone

(608) 266-0103 (In Madison)

or

1-800-236-8517 (Statewide)

Mailing Address

Office of the Commissioner of Insurance

P.O. Box 7873

Madison, WI 53707-7873

E-Mail

ocicomplaints@wisconsin.gov

Please indicate your name, phone number, and e-mail address.

Deaf, hearing, or speech impaired callers may reach OCI through WI TRS

This publication is not a legal analysis of your rights under any insurance policy or government program. Your insurance policy, program rules, Wisconsin law, federal law, and court decisions establish your rights. You may want to consult an attorney for legal guidance about your specific rights.

OCI does not represent the information in this publication is complete, accurate or timely in all instances. All information is subject to change on a regular basis, without notice.

Publications are updated annually unless otherwise stated. Publications are available on OCI's Web site oci.wi.gov. If you need a printed copy of a publication, use the online order form or call 1-800-236-8517.

One copy of this publication is available free of charge to the general public. All materials may be printed or copied without permission.

Table of Contents

	Page
Introduction.....	4
What Is an Annuity?.....	4
How Premiums Are Paid.....	5
When Benefits Are Paid.....	5
How the Money Is Invested	5
Annuity Contract Features.....	7
Typical Charges and Adjustments	7
Interest Rates	8
Surrender Rights.....	9
Benefits.....	9
Replacing Your Annuity.....	10
Retirees and Annuities.....	11
Wisconsin’s Suitability Law.....	12
Taxes	12
How Much Should I Buy?	13
Things to Consider Before You Buy.....	14
Selecting an Agent or Insurance Company	14
Financial Strength of Company	14
Wisconsin Insurance Security Fund	15
Problems with Insurance?	16
Glossary	17

Introduction

This publication should be used primarily to help you make choices when buying an annuity and to help you understand annuities as a source of retirement income.

To increase financial security in retirement, more and more people are including annuities in their financial planning. When considering the purchase of an annuity, it is important to understand the different types of annuities, how annuities work, the contractual features of the policy, and the benefits, as well as risks, in order to choose the kind of annuity to best fit your retirement needs.

Please note: annuities are complex and cannot be fully discussed here. You may want to consult your accountant or financial planner when deciding if an annuity will meet your retirement needs.

What is an annuity?

An annuity is a written contract typically between you and a life insurance company in which the insurance company makes a series of regularly spaced payments to you in return for a premium or premiums you have paid. An annuity is not life insurance. A life insurance policy provides benefits to your family if you die. An annuity helps you accumulate money for future income needs. An annuity is not a savings account or savings certificate and it should not be bought for short-term purposes. The most appropriate use for income payments from an annuity contract is to fund your retirement. Only an annuity can pay an income that can be guaranteed to last as long as you live.

There are three participants in an annuity contract: the owner, the annuitant, and the beneficiary.

The owner is the purchaser of the annuity, pays the premiums, and has the right to surrender the annuity. The owner is also responsible for any taxes due upon surrender or payout and is usually the person who names the contract's beneficiary.

The annuitant is the person whose age and life expectancy is going to be used to calculate the benefits of the annuity and who will receive the annuity payments. Usually, the annuitant and the owner are the same person, but it is not required.

The beneficiary receives the death benefit upon death of the annuitant either in one payment or multiple payments over time.

How Premiums are Paid

An annuity may be either a single premium or a multiple premium contract.

Single premium contracts require you to fully fund the annuity contract in one single premium payment. You cannot add additional money to the account.

Multiple premium contracts allow an annuity to be funded by means of premium payments over a period of time. There are two kinds of multiple premium contracts—flexible and scheduled. A flexible premium contract lets you pay as much as you want, whenever you want, within set limits. A scheduled premium contract spells out the amount and frequency of your premium payments.

When Benefits are Paid

An annuity may be either immediate or deferred. If you want to begin receiving income immediately, consider an immediate annuity. Immediate annuities, usually purchased with a single premium, provide income payments starting no later than one year after you pay the premium. The reason for buying an immediate annuity is to obtain immediate income for the purpose of retirement.

If you are years away from retirement, consider a deferred annuity. Deferred annuities provide income payments often starting many years later. Deferred annuities have an accumulation period, which is the time between when you start paying premiums and when income payments start. The main reason for buying a deferred annuity is to accumulate money on a tax-deferred basis, which can then provide an income at a later date.

How the Money is Invested

There are two basic types of annuity contracts—fixed and variable. At the time you buy an annuity contract you will select between a fixed or variable. This determines how earnings are credited in your contract.

Fixed Annuities

A fixed annuity provides fixed-dollar income payments backed by guarantees in the contract. During the accumulation period of a fixed deferred annuity, your money (less any applicable charges) earns interest rates set by the insurance company spelled out in the annuity contract. Every fixed annuity has a current interest rate and a minimum guaranteed interest rate. The company guarantees it will pay no less than a minimum rate of interest. During the payout period, the amount of each income payment to you is generally set when the payments start and will not change.

An indexed annuity is a type of fixed annuity, but its returns are based upon performance of a market index, such as the Standard & Poor's 500 Composite Stock Price Index (the S&P 500), the Dow Jones Industrial Average (DJIA), or the National Association of Securities Dealers Automated Quotations (NASDAQ), which measures how the market or part of the market performs. Over the period of time defined in your annuity contract, only a portion of performance of a market index adds interest to your annuity. Participation rates, cap rates, or spread rates are terms used to describe the amount of interest added to your annuity.

The annuity's principal investment is protected from losses in the market, while gains add to the annuity's returns. These types of annuity contracts are complex and the amount of interest credited and when it gets credited to your annuity will vary depending on the particular contract.

Variable Annuities

A variable annuity offers a range of investment or funding options. During the accumulation period of a variable annuity, the insurance company puts your premiums, less any applicable charges, into a separate account. You decide how the company will invest those premiums depending on how much risk you want to take. You may put your premium into a stock, bond, or other account, with no guarantees, or into a fixed account, with a minimum guaranteed interest rate. During the payout period of a variable annuity, the amount of each income payment to you may be fixed (set at the beginning) or variable (changing with the value of the investments in the separate account).

Remember you, the owner, or annuitant; bear the investment risk as the value of the variable annuity increases or decreases based upon investment performance of the security. For this reason you should be certain the annuity purchased is suitable for your needs and investment tolerance.

Read your annuity contract carefully when you receive it. Ask your insurance agent or insurance company to explain anything you do not understand. If you cannot get answers to your questions, call the Office of the Commissioner of Insurance (OCI) toll-free at 1-800-236-8517.

Annuity Contract Features

The value of your annuity consists of premiums you have paid, less charges, plus interest credited. This value is used to calculate the amount of benefits you will receive. Charges, interest, surrender rights, and benefits are explained below.

Typical Charges and Adjustments

There are many types and amounts of charges. Companies may refer to these charges by different names. Some annuities are “front loaded,” which means most of the costs to the company are charged to you in the beginning. Some are “back loaded,” which means most of these costs are charged to you later on. Others spread their charges evenly throughout the life of the annuity. Some charges will be fixed by the contract while some may be changed by the company from time to time.

Before buying an annuity you should know all of the charges you will pay and when you will pay them. Also, you should understand how these charges might affect the actual amount of money that will accumulate from your premium payments. A typical contract might contain one or more of the following types of charges:

Percentage of Premium Charge

This charge, often called a “load,” is deducted from each premium before any interest is added. The percentage may reduce after the contract has been in force for a certain number of years or after the total premiums paid have reached a certain level.

Contract Fee

This is a flat dollar amount charged either once or annually.

Market Value Adjustment

Some annuity contracts have a market value adjustment feature. A market value adjustment (MVA) could increase or decrease your annuity’s account value, cash surrender value, and/or death benefit value if you withdraw money from your annuity account. In general, if interest rates are lower when you withdraw money than they were when you purchased the annuity, the MVA could increase the amount you could take from your annuity. If interest rates are higher than when you purchased the annuity, the MVA could reduce the amount you could take from your annuity. Every MVA calculation is different so read your contract for details.

Transaction Fee

This is a fixed charge per premium payment or other transactions such as transfers or withdrawals.

Surrender Charge

This charge is usually a percentage of the value of the contract or premiums paid. The percentage may be reduced or eliminated after the contract has been in force for a stated number of years. Sometimes the charge is a reduction in the interest rate credited and sometimes the charge is eliminated if the interest rate declared by the company falls below a certain level.

Interest Rates

During the accumulation period, your money, less any applicable charges, earns interest at rates changing from time to time. Usually, these rates will be entirely up to the insurance company.

Current Interest Rate

Current rate—rate the company decides to credit to your contract at a particular time. The company will guarantee it will not change for a given period of time.

Initial rate—interest rate the insurance company may credit for a set period of time after you first buy your annuity. The initial rate in some contracts may be higher than it will be later, often called a bonus rate.

Renewal rate—rate credited by the company after the end of a set time period. The contract tells how the company will set the renewal rate, which may be tied to an external reference or index.

Minimum Guaranteed Rate

The minimum guaranteed interest rate is the lowest rate your annuity will earn and is stated in the contract.

Multiple Interest Rates

Some annuity contracts apply different interest rates to each premium you pay or to premiums you pay during different time periods.

Other annuity contracts may have two or more accumulated values funding different benefit options. These accumulated values may use different interest rates. You get only one of the accumulated values depending on which benefit you choose.

Surrender Rights

Most annuities allow you to surrender your annuity for its total accumulation value or withdraw a portion of the value if income payments have not yet started. However, a surrender charge may be deducted from the amount surrendered or withdrawn. This charge is usually a percentage of the accumulated value of the contract, premiums paid, or portion withdrawn.

Surrender charges usually apply to surrenders or withdrawals you take during a stated number of years after you purchase your annuity. Surrender charges may gradually decrease each year the contract remains in force. Sometimes annuities waive withdrawal charges in certain situations, such as death, confinement in a nursing home, or terminal illness.

Your annuity may also have a limited, free withdrawal feature letting you withdraw, for example, 10% of your contract value annually without a surrender charge.

There may be certain tax penalties for early surrenders. Be sure you understand any tax implications before surrendering an annuity contract.

Benefits

Annuity contracts provide a number of benefits. One of the most important benefits of the annuity is the ability to use the value built up during the accumulation period to provide a lump sum payment or to make income payments during the payout period. Income payments are usually made monthly but you may choose to receive them less often. The size of the income payments is based on the accumulated value in your annuity and the annuity's benefit rate in effect when income payments start. The benefit rate usually depends on your age, sex, and the annuity payment option. While the annuity income benefit is the primary benefit, other benefits are also important. Some of the more important ones are described below.

Companies may offer various income payment options. You (the owner) or another person you name may choose the option. Make sure your agent goes over each option with you thoroughly so you choose an option most appropriate for your needs. It is very important to understand once a payout option is chosen and you start receiving payments that option cannot be changed.

The most commonly available annuity income options are:

Life Only

The annuity income benefit is paid as long as you are alive. There are no further payments to anyone after your death.

Life with Period Certain

The annuity income benefit is paid for as long as you are alive. The company guarantees to make payments for a set number of years even if you die. If you die before the end of the period referred to as the “period certain,” the annuity will be paid to your beneficiary for the rest of that period. A typical period certain is usually 10 or 20 years. If you live longer than the “period certain,” you will continue to receive payments until you die. Since the period certain feature is an added benefit, each income payment is smaller than in a life-only option.

Joint and Survivor

The annuity income benefit is paid as long as either you or your beneficiary is still alive. You may choose to decrease the amount of the payments after the first death. Since the survivor feature is an added benefit, each income payment is smaller than in a life-only option.

Death Benefit

Most contracts provide, if you die before the annuity payments start, the contract value will be paid to your beneficiary. Some contracts provide the death benefit will be the total premiums paid if that amount is greater than the value of the contract at death.

Waiver of Premium

Some companies offer a benefit which will pay premiums for you if you become disabled. A charge is made for this benefit.

Replacing Your Annuity

Replacement occurs when a person purchases new life insurance or an annuity and the person’s existing life insurance or an annuity has been, may possibly be, or will be lapsed, surrendered, or all or a portion of the existing policy’s cash or loan value is used in connection with the purchase of new life insurance or an annuity. If you have an existing life insurance policy or annuity contract when you purchase a new life insurance policy or annuity, Wisconsin regulations require you to receive and sign an Important Notice form providing important information concerning replacement transactions. If the new contract is with a different insurance company, the new company must notify the existing insurance company of the possible replacement. The existing company is required to send you a letter advising you of your right to receive information regarding your existing policy or contract values including an in-force illustration or policy summary.

Remember, if you replace an existing annuity, you may lose a portion of the annuity's value as a result of surrender charges or penalties. It is likely you will also be subject to a new surrender period before you can withdraw money from the new contract without a penalty. Unless you plan to hold the annuity for a significant amount of time, you may be better off keeping the annuity you already have.

Replacement may or may not be in your best interest. You should make a careful comparison of the costs and benefits of your existing policy and the new policy. Ask the company or agent that sold you your existing policy to provide you with information concerning your existing policy.

Once you have received the new contract, you have 30 days to decide if you want to keep it. During this “free-look” period, you can return the policy to the agent or company for a full refund of your initial premium. Read your annuity contract carefully when you receive it. Ask your insurance agent or insurance company to explain anything you do not understand. If you cannot get answers to your questions, call OCI toll-free at 1-800-236-8517. However, if you decide to cancel your new policy during the free-look period, there is no requirement for the existing company to reinstate your existing policy.

Retirees and Annuities

One of the reasons for buying an annuity is to increase financial security in retirement. An annuity may not be the best choice for people who are close to retirement or who have already retired.

The tax consequences and long holding periods necessary to make a deferred or variable annuity attractive are investment options that probably do not make sense for retirees.

Choose a qualified financial advisor or an insurance agent you trust to help you decide if an annuity is the right choice for you. Seniors are often targeted by financial scams. If it looks too good to be true, it probably is.

Wisconsin's Suitability Law

Under Wisconsin's suitability law, insurance companies and agents offering annuity products to consumers are required to make reasonable efforts to obtain information from a consumer about his or her financial status, tax status, investment objectives, and other information reasonably appropriate for determining suitability before making a recommendation involving an annuity to a consumer. An insurance company or agent may not make a recommendation resulting in the purchase or exchange of an annuity unless there are reasonable grounds to believe the recommendation is suitable for the consumer based on information disclosed by the consumer.

Taxes

Under current federal law, annuities receive special tax treatment. Income or tax on annuities is deferred, which means you are not taxed on the interest your money earns while it stays in the annuity. Tax-deferred accumulation is not the same as tax-free accumulation. An advantage of tax deferral is the tax bracket you are in when you receive annuity income payments may be lower than the one you are in during the accumulation period. You will also be earning interest on the amount you would have paid in taxes during the accumulation period. Most states' tax laws on annuities follow federal law.

Part of the payments you receive from the annuity will be considered as a return of the premiums you have paid. You will not have to pay taxes on that part. Another part of the payments is considered interest you have earned. You must pay taxes on the part considered interest when you withdraw the money. You may also have to pay a 10% tax penalty if you withdraw money from your annuity before age 59 ½. The Internal Revenue Code also has rules about distributions after the death of a contract holder.

Annuities are a way to accumulate money to be used at some future date to enhance income. Remember, when you begin to withdraw money from the annuity, you must then pay taxes on your gain.

Another point to remember is, at the time of total withdrawal of funds, which most often occurs upon the death of the annuitant/owner, the entire gain in the annuity is subject to income taxes when received by the beneficiary.

For example, you own a deferred annuity into which you originally deposited $50,000 and now it is worth $70,000. When your beneficiary receives the annuity, income taxes will be due on the $20,000 gain.

Annuities used to fund certain employee pension benefit plans [those under Internal Revenue Code Sections 401 (a), 401 (k), 403 (b), 457, or 414] defer taxes on plan contributions as well as on interest or investment income. Within the limits set by the law, you can use pretax dollars to make payments to the annuity. When you take money out, it will be taxed.

You can also use annuities to fund traditional and Roth Individual Retirement Accounts (IRAs) under Internal Revenue Code Section 408. If you buy an annuity to fund an IRA, you will receive a disclosure statement describing the tax treatment.

How Much Should I Buy?

Before you decide to buy an annuity, ask yourself these questions:

- Depending on my needs or age, is this annuity right for me? Taking money out of an annuity may mean you pay taxes. Also, while it is sometimes possible to transfer the value of an older annuity into a new annuity, the new annuity may have a new schedule for charges that could mean new expenses you must pay directly or indirectly.
- How much annuity income will I need in addition to my social security, pension, savings, and any other income or investment sources?
- Will I need an income only for myself or also for someone else?
- How much can I afford to pay in premiums?
- How will the annuity contract fit in with my total financial planning?
- How long can I leave money in the annuity?
- When will I need income payments?
- Does the annuity let me get money when I need it?

Things to Consider Before You Buy

- Do not buy the first contract you are offered. Take your time. Shop around.
- Compare contract summaries and policy benefits for similar contracts from several companies. Choose the one that best fits your needs at the most favorable premium rate.
- Ask questions. Your annuity contract may represent a considerable investment and may significantly impact your family's future.
- Be certain you understand the effect of all charges and penalties you may incur under the contract.
- If you are buying an annuity for an IRA or another tax deferred retirement program, make sure you are eligible. Also make sure you understand any restrictions connected with the program. Ask your accountant about any potential tax consequences.

Selecting an Agent or Insurance Company

For the most part, insurance is sold directly through an insurance company or through an agent or broker. An independent agent may represent more than one and sometimes several insurance companies. An exclusive or captive agent sells solely for one insurance company or group of related insurance companies.

Verify the agent or company you choose to do business with are licensed in Wisconsin. All companies and agents doing business in Wisconsin are required to be licensed by OCI. To find out if a company or agent is licensed in Wisconsin, visit OCI's Web site at oci.wi.gov or call toll-free at 1-800-236-8517.

Do Not Pay Cash. When you purchase an annuity, make your check or money order payable to the insurance company, not the agent. Be sure to get a receipt.

Financial Strength of Company

An annuity is only as sound as the insurance company issuing it. Financial strength and being able to meet financial obligations to policyholders is very important.

Independent organizations such as A. M. Best, Standard & Poor's, Moody's, Fitch Ratings and others publish financial ratings. The ratings used by these agencies represent the organization's opinions of an insurance company's financial condition and its ability to meet its obligations to policyholders. These rating organizations do not rate the quality of the company's policies, practices, agents, or service. You should consider checking with at least two organizations to evaluate a company's strength. If you want to check on an insurance company's financial stability, you may call OCI toll-free at 1-800-236-8517 or check with your insurance agent.

Wisconsin Insurance Security Fund

Every state has a safety net to protect insurance consumers from financial loss in the rare instance a company becomes insolvent. This safety net is called a "guaranty fund." The guaranty funds are established by state law. They pay the claims of policyholders and other claimants of an insolvent insurance company. Money to pay the claims comes from assessments made against all insurance companies that are members of the guaranty fund.

In Wisconsin, the fund is called the Wisconsin Insurance Security Fund (Fund). The Fund is created by state law and is funded by assessments of insurance companies licensed to do business in Wisconsin. In general, the Fund protects residents for most claims of licensed companies in liquidation. The Fund should not be relied upon to eliminate all risks of loss to companies due to insurance company insolvency. Some types of policies may not be fully covered and significant delays could occur in settling obligations in cases of liquidation.

Questions about the coverage and limitations of the Fund may be addressed to:

Wisconsin Insurance Security Fund
2820 Walton Commons West, Suite 135
Madison, WI 53718-6797
(608) 242-9473
(844) 344-5484 Toll-Free
wisconsin@wisf-madison.org
www.wilifega.org

Problems with Insurance?

If you are having a problem with your insurance, you should first check with your agent or with the company who sold you the policy. If you do not get satisfactory answers from the agent or company, contact OCI. OCI investigates complaints to determine if any insurance laws have been violated. If so, OCI may take action against the agent or company involved. These actions include imposing fines or suspending or revoking licenses.

To file a complaint online or to print a complaint form, go to OCI's Web site at oci.wi.gov. Make sure you have included detailed information about your insurance problem. Be sure you have included the correct name of the insurance company from which you bought the policy. Many companies have very similar names. Listing the wrong name may delay the investigation of your complaint.

For more information see the publication Insurance Complaints and Administrative Actions on OCI's Web site at oci.wi.gov/Pages/Consumers/ConsumerPublications.aspx#inscomplaints or call OCI toll-free at 1-800-236-8517 to request a copy.

Glossary

Accumulation phase: The period of time where all premiums are paid into the annuity and the money grows tax-deferred.

Agent: A person licensed by a state insurance department who solicits, sells, services, or negotiates insurance contracts on behalf of one or more insurance companies.

Annuitant: A person who receives benefit payments from an annuity.

Annuitize: A method of receiving annuity benefits through a series of income payments for life or some other defined period of time.

Annuity: A written contract with a life insurance company which guarantees an income for life or some other defined period in exchange for premiums you pay.

Application: A statement of information made by a person applying for insurance. Information gathered helps the insurance company assess whether the risk presented by the applicant is acceptable.

Back loaded: Company expenses charged at the time benefits begin.

Beneficiary: The person named in the annuity contract as the person who receives benefit payments if the annuitant dies.

Current interest rate: The interest rate an insurance company promises to pay for a specified time period. It is based on the prevailing interest rates in the economy.

Death benefit: The annuity benefits paid to the beneficiary upon the death of the contract owner or annuitant.

Fixed annuity: An annuity contract guarantees a minimum rate of interest, as well as a higher current rate of interest for shorter periods, during the accumulation phase of a deferred annuity.

Free-look period: A period specified in the contract during which you can decide whether to keep an annuity or return it for a full refund of your premium. In Wisconsin you have 30 days in which to return a contract after you have received it if you replaced an existing contract.

Front load: Company expenses charged at the beginning of a premium payment period.

Guaranteed interest rate: A minimum interest rate specified in a fixed annuity. The actual rate the insurance company credits your contract at any given time may be higher but can never be lower.

Immediate annuity: An annuity contract in which annuity payouts begin immediately or within one year.

Indexed annuity: A contract combining a guaranteed minimum interest rate with earnings linked to performance of a market index, such as the Standard & Poor's 500 Composite Stock Price Index (the S&P 500), the Dow Jones Industrial Average (DJIA), or the National Association of Securities Dealers Automated Quotations (NASDAQ).

Initial interest rate: The interest rate the insurance company may credit for a set period of time after you first buy your annuity. The annuity contract will specify how long the initial interest rate is guaranteed.

Interest: The fees bonding issuers, banks, and other financial institutions pay for the use of borrowed money.

Joint and survivor annuity: An annuity that continues income payments as long as one annuitant remains alive; the payment amount may be reduced after one annuitant dies.

Period certain: An income option offered by an annuity where the contract owner can select to receive periodic payments for a specified period of time. The payout amount is determined by contract value and length of the period selected.

Premium: The money you pay to the insurance company to fund an annuity contract.

Replacement: Occurs when a person purchases new life insurance or an annuity and the person's existing life insurance or an annuity has been, may possibly be, or will be lapsed, surrendered, or all or a portion of the existing policy's cash or loan value is used in connection with the purchase of new life insurance or an annuity.

Surrender charge: A fee the insurance company will charge you if you cash in (surrender) an annuity before the contract has been in force for a stated number of years or if you make a withdrawal larger than specified in the contract.

Tax-deferral: Taxes on earnings are postponed until any earnings are withdrawn from the annuity.

Variable annuity: An annuity contract allowing you to allocate premium among a number of investment portfolios (sub-accounts). The policy's contract value can fluctuate in accordance with performance of the underlying investments.

Withdrawal privilege: A provision in many annuity contracts allowing you to withdraw a set percentage of your contract value without paying a surrender charge. Any withdrawal may be subject to taxes and penalties.