Consumer’s Guide to Health Insurance Grievances and Complaints

A Consumer’s Guide to Resolving Disputes with Your Health Plan

State of Wisconsin
Office of the Commissioner of Insurance
P.O. Box 7873
Madison, WI 53707-7873
oci.wi.gov
The mission of the Office of the Commissioner of Insurance . . .
Leading the way in informing and protecting the public and responding to their insurance needs.

If you have a specific complaint about your insurance, refer it first to the insurance company or agent involved. If you do not receive satisfactory answers, contact the Office of the Commissioner of Insurance (OCI).

To file a complaint online or to print a complaint form:
OCI's Website
oci.wi.gov

Phone
(608) 266-0103 (In Madison)
or
1-800-236-8517 (Statewide)

Mailing Address
Office of the Commissioner of Insurance
P.O. Box 7873
Madison, WI 53707-7873

Email
ocicomplaints@wisconsin.gov
Please indicate your name, phone number, and email address.

Deaf, hearing, or speech impaired callers may reach OCI through WI TRS

This publication is not a legal analysis of your rights under any insurance policy or government program. Your insurance policy, program rules, Wisconsin law, federal law, and court decisions establish your rights. You may want to consult an attorney for legal guidance about your specific rights.

OCI does not represent the information in this publication is complete, accurate or timely in all instances. All information is subject to change on a regular basis, without notice.

Publications are updated annually unless otherwise stated. Publications are available on OCI’s website oci.wi.gov. If you need a printed copy of a publication, use the online order form or call 1-800-236-8517.

One copy of this publication is available free of charge to the general public. All materials may be printed or copied without permission.
Introduction

Most people will never have a problem with their health insurance. But when you do have a complaint with your plan, it is important to understand the steps you must take to resolve your problem.

This publication serves as a guide to help you understand the grievance and complaint process all policies sold in Wisconsin are required to offer you. Included at the end of the publication is a series of worksheets to help you document your complaint process.

Although most health plans have an appeal process, not all health plans are subject to the appeal process discussed in this publication. If your plan is self-funded by your employer, it is subject to federal, not state law. Public programs like Medicare and Medicaid also have their own appeal processes. You will have to contact your employer or the Medicare and Medicaid programs directly for information about their grievance processes.

What You Need to Know About Your Health Plan

How do I receive medical benefits from my health plan?

Most health plans require you to follow certain procedures in order to receive coverage from the plan. If you know the procedures your health plan requires and you follow them, you will less likely have problems when you need services. For example, you should know how to file a claim, when you might need prior authorization from your plan, when you need to contact the company, and who your in-network providers are. Familiarize yourself with these procedures before you need health care in order to minimize trouble when you are already dealing with health problems.

Is your provider in-plan?

If you are in a managed care plan, make sure your provider is in-plan before each visit to ensure you will receive coverage. Some plans allow you to receive services from non-plan providers; however, you will pay a larger portion of the bill. Some plans may also have more than one benefit level for in-plan providers; for example, a visit to a specialist may require a higher copay than a visit to a primary care provider. Make sure you understand what you will be required to pay. You may verify this by checking the plan’s Web site or by calling your insurer.

What is covered and what is excluded under my health plan?

You should review your summary of benefits and coverage for a quick overview of the procedures and medications, but your certificate of coverage will provide a complete picture of your coverage including exclusions and limitations.

What if my plan does not cover something?

No health plan covers everything—sometimes not even health care services that are medically necessary or procedures where there is no other option. However, remember as a consumer you may ask your insurer to cover your procedure if you believe it is an effective treatment. You may ask the insurer to consider covering the procedure on an exception basis if you believe it is more effective than a covered procedure.
Where do I find answers to these questions?

Review your member material, including your policy or certificate and provider directory. For coverage of prescription drugs, check your plan’s formulary. These documents may generally be found on the health plan’s Web site.

You may also call your health plan’s customer service number for this information. If your plan is employer based, you may talk to your employer’s human resources section to find answers.

Most importantly, make sure to keep all records. In addition to the information on the plan’s Web site, keep copies of any correspondence from your insurer, letters from providers and/or other documents such as medical records and test results, and also records of all phone calls made to your health plan. The attached worksheets are included to help you document conversations with your insurer.

What if coverage is denied?

If your plan denies your claim or your request for coverage, you will receive a written notice. This denial notice (or explanation of benefits) should explain why your insurer denied your claim. Your health plan should give you a specific reason for the denial. The notice should also explain your appeal rights.

What should I do if I have a complaint?

Many complaints or questions may be resolved informally by calling your plan’s customer service line. Many health plans also have Web sites that can be helpful in resolving your complaints. If you have questions regarding how to complain to your insurer, call OCI at 800-236-8517 or visit oci.wi.gov for help filing a complaint.

What if I’m not satisfied with the results of my complaint?

You still have the right to file a grievance. Your denial notice may explain how to do this, or it will tell you how to find these instructions. The denial notice also includes information about your right to have your claim reviewed by an Independent Review Organization.

What is a grievance?

A grievance is any written dissatisfaction with the provision of services, claims practices, or the administration of a health benefit plan. A grievance may be submitted by you or you may authorize someone to submit the grievance on your behalf. For example, a grievance can be filed when your health plan denies your request for a referral, your health plan will not cover a treatment you believe you need, or you are dissatisfied with the quality of the treatment provided by your network physician.

In some cases, you may need to resolve your grievance more quickly than the standard grievance process. If this is the case, request an expedited grievance. An expedited grievance means a grievance where any of the following apply:

- The length of time for a normal grievance resolution would result in serious jeopardy to your life or health or would limit the ability for you to regain maximum function.
- Your physician requests the expedited process because your pain is too severe to be adequately managed without the care or treatment you are requesting.
- Your physician determines the grievance should be treated as an expedited grievance.
How do I file a grievance with my health plan?

You may file a grievance by sending a letter to your health plan. Keep the following points in mind when writing and sending your letter:

- Identify yourself, including your name, address, and health plan ID number.

- Explain the problem; be specific with dates of service, denial notice, summaries of any phone conversations, and why you believe the plan’s decision is wrong.

- Base your argument on policy language; if you are asking for an exception, explain how coverage could benefit the plan—such as avoiding a more expensive treatment that is covered.

- Clearly state what you want the resolution of your grievance to be.

- Include photocopies of any supporting documents, such as medical records, referrals, supporting letters from doctors, and articles from peer-reviewed medical journals. If your grievance involves a medical issue, you may want to talk to a doctor and ask if he/she has any records supporting your position.

- Keep the letter business-like.

- If someone else is sending the grievance for you, include a note signed by you authorizing that person to act on your behalf; most plans will require this.

- Send the letter to the address provided on the denial notice or in your certificate.

What happens next?

Your health plan must send you an acknowledgment within five business days of receiving your letter. If you do not receive an acknowledgment, call your plan. Some plans may review the grievance to try to resolve the problem informally.

Can I be present at the grievance review?

Yes, but you are not required to attend. Your health plan must send you a notice of the time and place of the meeting at least seven days in advance. You have the right to appear in person or by teleconference before the grievance panel where you may present written and oral information and question the decision makers.

The grievance panel must include at least one individual authorized to take corrective action, one insured who is not part of the plan, if possible, and may not include the person who made the initial determination. The panel is not required to include a medical professional but should consult one when appropriate.

When can I expect to hear from my health plan?

Your plan should send you a grievance resolution letter within 30 days of initially receiving the grievance. In some cases, the plan may need to extend the decision an additional 30 days but must send you a written notice explaining the reason for the extension.

When you do receive a response, it will be in the form of a letter either accepting or denying your grievance. If your grievance was denied, the letter should explain any additional options, including the right to an independent review. The letter should be signed by one voting member of the panel and include the titles of the panel members.
Independent Review Process

Both state and federal law give individuals the right to request an independent external review when their health plan denies or reduces coverage of medical services in some circumstances. Although the laws are similar, there are some significant differences. This publication provides general information on Wisconsin’s process.

What is an independent review?

An independent review is a process in which an outside expert provides a second look at your claim. Because the reviewer is not affiliated with you, your medical provider, or the insurer, the reviewer is able to conduct an independent and unbiased review of your claim.

The independent review process is intended to be an easy way to allow you to receive an independent decision within a relatively short time frame. You may request an independent review whenever your health plan denies you coverage for treatment based on a medical judgment. For example, you may request an independent review if the health plan maintains the treatment is not medically necessary according to the definition in your policy or the treatment is experimental. You may not request an independent review if the requested treatment is not a covered benefit in your health plan.

Who performs the independent review?

The independent review process provides you with an opportunity to have your dispute reviewed by experts who have no connection to you, your medical provider, or your health plan. The independent review organization (IRO) assigns your dispute to a clinical peer reviewer who is an expert in the treatment of your medical condition. The clinical peer reviewer is generally a board-certified physician or other appropriate medical professional. In some cases, the IRO will also consult with an attorney or other insurance expert.

When can I request an independent review?

You can request an independent review whenever your insurer bases its decision to deny coverage on a medical judgment. In most cases you cannot request an independent review until you have completed the internal grievance process, but you may bypass this process if both you and the insurer agree or the IRO agrees a delay in receiving care could jeopardize your health. The independent review must be requested within four months of the date listed on your grievance resolution letter.

How do I request an independent review?

The grievance resolution letter should explain how to request an independent review. Send your request for an independent review to the address provided in the insurer’s final written decision letter.

Be sure to include:

- your name, address, and phone number
- an explanation of why you believe the treatment should be covered
- any additional information or documentation supporting your position (photocopies)
- if someone else is filing on your behalf, a statement signed by you authorizing that person to be your representative
- any other information requested by your insurer

After your insurer receives the information, it must send all relevant medical records and other documentation used in making its decision to the IRO within five business days. The IRO then has five business days to review the information and to request any additional information it may need from the insurer or from you.
Then what will the IRO do?

First the IRO will review the request to verify it has no connection to the insurer or health care provider. Then the IRO will review the file to determine if it is complete. You or your insurer may be asked for additional information.

When the IRO has all the information it needs, it has 30 business days to make a decision. The file is forwarded to a clinical peer reviewer who has relevant expertise. In reviewing a case involving medical necessity, the IRO and its reviewer are required to consider all documentation, including your medical records, your attending provider’s recommendation, the terms of coverage of your health plan, the rationale for the insurer’s prior decision, and any medical or scientific evidence. It must limit its decision on a case involving experimental treatment to whether the proposed treatment is experimental. After 30 days, the IRO will send its decision letter to you and your insurer.

Federal external review process:

Most health plans in Wisconsin are required to follow the federal external review process. Under the federal process, insurance companies may choose to participate in either an external review process administered by the U.S. Department of Health and Humans Services (HHS) or to follow the external review process regulations developed by the U.S. Department of Labor (DOL).

HHS has contracted with Maximus Federal Services, Inc., to provide independent external reviews under the HHS-administered process. Information on this process is available at externalappeal.com or by calling 1-888-866-6205 ext. 3326.

Health plans following DOL’s external review process must privately contract with at least three nationally accredited IROs. When you send your review request to the health plan, it must have a process to randomly choose one of its contracted IROs for an external review.

What if I need medical attention now?

If you believe you need treatment urgently and waiting 30 days for the IRO to complete the standard independent review process could jeopardize your health or life, you may be eligible for an expedited process.

Send your request to both your insurer and the IRO at the same time. The IRO’s medical staff will then review your request and has the authority to determine if the grievance process may be bypassed. You will be given a decision within 72 hours.

Do I have any other options?

If you have already gone through the grievance process and still are unsatisfied with the results you may:

- File a complaint with OCI.
- Hire an attorney.
- Take your complaint to small claims court.
- Contact your employer’s human resources department for assistance.
Other Resources

Employer self-funded complaints:

The U.S. Department of Labor regulates employer self-funded health plans. You may file a complaint or submit a question by contacting them at www.dol.gov/agencies/ebsa/about-ebsa/ask-a-question/ask-ebsa or by calling their toll-free number 1-866-444-3272.

Medicare complaints:

The Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services (CMS) has jurisdiction over the Medicare program. Information about the Medicare complaints and appeals processes is available at www.medicare.gov/claims-and-appeals/file-a-complaint/complaint.html.

Wisconsin Medicaid (BadgerCare Plus) complaints:

The Wisconsin Department of Health Services (DHS) administers the Wisconsin Medicaid program. Information about DHS’ complaint processes is available by calling their toll-free number, 1-800-362-3002.
Grievance and Complaints Worksheet

Step 1: Get to know your health plan

Insurance company name: _____________________________________________________

Company address: ___________________________________________________________

Company phone number: ______________________________________________________

My health plan is through:

[  ] My employer  [  ] A policy I bought myself  [  ] Health Insurance Marketplace (also called the Exchange), healthcare.gov  [  ] Other: __________________________________________________________________

What is covered under my health plan:

[  ] Are the doctors, hospitals and other medical providers I use in the plan’s network?
   __________________________________________________________________________
   __________________________________________________________________________
   __________________________________________________________________________
   __________________________________________________________________________

[  ] If I choose to use a doctor outside the provider’s network, will I be covered?
   __________________________________________________________________________
   __________________________________________________________________________
   __________________________________________________________________________
   __________________________________________________________________________

[  ] Can I change my primary-care physician if I want to?
   __________________________________________________________________________
   __________________________________________________________________________
   __________________________________________________________________________
   __________________________________________________________________________

address      city  state  zip code
[ ] Do I need to get permission before seeing a medical specialist?

________________________________________________________________________
________________________________________________________________________
________________________________________________________________________
________________________________________________________________________

[ ] What are the procedures for getting care and being reimbursed in an emergency, both at home and out of town?

________________________________________________________________________
________________________________________________________________________
________________________________________________________________________
________________________________________________________________________

[ ] If I have a chronic medical condition, how will the plan treat it?

________________________________________________________________________
________________________________________________________________________
________________________________________________________________________
________________________________________________________________________

[ ] Are my prescription medications covered by my health plan?

________________________________________________________________________
________________________________________________________________________
________________________________________________________________________
________________________________________________________________________

[ ] If I want alternative medical therapies such as acupuncture or chiropractic treatment, will they be covered by my health plan?

________________________________________________________________________
________________________________________________________________________
________________________________________________________________________
________________________________________________________________________

[ ] Are all pregnancy-related medical costs covered by the provider?

________________________________________________________________________
________________________________________________________________________
________________________________________________________________________
________________________________________________________________________
Step 2: Keep your records

In the event you may have a complaint in the future, it is important to keep all records relating to your insurance policy.

[ ] Policy certificate (generally available on your health plan’s Web site)
[ ] Medical records/test results
[ ] Letters from providers
[ ] Records of all phone conversations, including

Date and time: ___________________

Number called: ___________________

Name of the plan representative: _______________________________________

Summary of the discussion (including any promises made and the estimated time for any payment resolution):

____________________________________________________________________
____________________________________________________________________
____________________________________________________________________
____________________________________________________________________
____________________________________________________________________
____________________________________________________________________
____________________________________________________________________
____________________________________________________________________
____________________________________________________________________
____________________________________________________________________
____________________________________________________________________
____________________________________________________________________
____________________________________________________________________
____________________________________________________________________
____________________________________________________________________
____________________________________________________________________
____________________________________________________________________

Date and time: ___________________

Number called: ___________________

Name of the plan representative: ________________________________________

Summary of the discussion (including any promises made and the estimated time for any payment resolution):

_____________________________________________________________________
_____________________________________________________________________
_____________________________________________________________________
_____________________________________________________________________
_____________________________________________________________________
_____________________________________________________________________

Date and time: ___________________

Number called: ___________________

Name of the plan representative: ________________________________________

Summary of the discussion (including any promises made and the estimated time for any payment resolution):

_____________________________________________________________________
_____________________________________________________________________
_____________________________________________________________________
_____________________________________________________________________
_____________________________________________________________________
_____________________________________________________________________
_____________________________________________________________________
_____________________________________________________________________
_____________________________________________________________________
_____________________________________________________________________
_____________________________________________________________________
_____________________________________________________________________
_____________________________________________________________________
_____________________________________________________________________
_____________________________________________________________________
_____________________________________________________________________
_____________________________________________________________________
_____________________________________________________________________
_____________________________________________________________________
_____________________________________________________________________
_____________________________________________________________________
_____________________________________________________________________
_____________________________________________________________________
_____________________________________________________________________
_____________________________________________________________________
_____________________________________________________________________
_____________________________________________________________________
_____________________________________________________________________
_____________________________________________________________________

Step 3: Write your letter

Make sure you use the following tips when writing your complaint letter:

[ ] Did I include my name, address, phone number, and my policy ID number?

[ ] Did I fully explain the problem, including:

  [ ] dates of service?
  [ ] summaries of phone conversations?
  [ ] reasons I believe the plan’s decision is wrong?

[ ] Did I use policy language?

[ ] Did I clearly state my intended resolution?

[ ] Did I include photocopies of all supporting documents?

[ ] If someone else is sending the grievance on my behalf, did I include a note signed by me?

[ ] Did I send the letter to the address provided on the denial notice?